AI in Philological Teaching & Research

A national symposium with international participation

08.05.2026, Faculty of Letters, C010

Program / Programme

12:00–13:30 Gamification and AI in Philological Teaching and Learning

Referee: Jeremy Lambert, PhD

Teaching and learning face new challenges in today's academic world. New technologies bring about innovative pedagogical approaches and should transform the ways we design courses. The objectives and goals of education should be redefined according to the needs of the next generations. Thus, young learners need to experience critical thinking and practical design skills applied to philological contents. Nowadays the classroom-space is not reduced to the physical surroundings being enlarged by the virtual space of the internet. That is why, within the interactive workshop-like activities a set of pedagogical strategies will be exemplified and tried out, such as gamification and the use of AI-tools in teaching and learning language and literature. Workshop's language is English. The participation fee for this part of the symposium is 50 Ron, cash only at the reception before the beginning of the event.

13:30 Coffee break

14:00–15:00 AI in the Philological Research – DATA SWEEP-Workshop (E-nformation partner)

Referee: George Tudose, representant Data Sweep

Workshopul este dedicat comunității academice (studenți masteranzi și doctoranzi, cadre didactice, cercetători) cu privire la utilizarea platformei DATA SWEEP (<https://datasweep.app/>), o resursă inovatoare pentru cercetare academică.

DATA SWEEP oferă acces la peste 250 de milioane de materiale științifice și include funcționalități avansate precum:

- realizarea de studii bibliometrice
- Pro & Deep Research Assistant
- exportul în masă al materialelor științifice
- instrumente utile pentru redactarea articolelor științifice
